Here's some information on the new SGX Structured Certificate Product :

SGX will be the first exchange in Asia to offer trading in these certificates, providing investors greater price transparency and liquidity to a new range of products. Structured Certificates are structured products based on an underlying asset (such as a single stock or equity index) and contain derivative components. These certificates are third-party issued financial instruments designed to meet specific needs of investors, such as yield enhancement and growth payoffs.

Two types of payoffs, Autocallable Certificates and Discount Certificates, will be available for the initial phase of launch. Subsequent payoffs may be progressively introduced in the coming years, subject to due regulatory process and investor demand.

Structured Certificates are products with features that may be more complex in nature and are only suitable for investors who possess the investment knowledge of more complex products and have a high-risk tolerance. Investors need to be SIP-qualified to invest in these certificates.

To increase investor awareness and education outreach, we are pleased to invite you to a product training session organized by SGX and issuer Societe Generale.
